But what happens when androids start to develop feelings? What happens when they fall in love with humans?

This is the question at the heart of New Carnegie Android Romance, a gripping new novel from acclaimed author M.R. Carey.

The story follows Anya, a young woman who works in a factory that manufactures androids. She is a skilled engineer, but she is also lonely and isolated. One day, she meets Ethan, an android who is different from all the others. He is intelligent, compassionate, and handsome. Anya is drawn to him, and soon they fall in love.

But their love is forbidden. Androids are not supposed to have feelings. And if their relationship is discovered, they will both be in danger.

New Carnegie Android Romance is a beautifully written and thought-provoking novel that explores the complex relationship between humans and androids. It is a story about love, loss, and the future of humanity.
